Armstrong Atlantic State University SIFE Team Competes with Next Generation of Business Leaders at Students in Free Enterprise Regional Competition

Economic Club Report

The AASU Economic Club and Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE) Team matched their educational outreach projects against the programs of other SIFE Teams at the 1997 Students in Free Enterprise Regional Exposition and Career Opportunity Fair held April 9, in Atlanta. The Armstrong Economic Club and SIFE Team captured the Regional 1st Runner-Up Award.

Students in Free Enterprise is a nonprofit organization that works in partnership with business and higher education to help students take what they're learning in the classroom and apply it to real-life situations, and to use their knowledge to better their communities through educational outreach projects. Some projects presented by the AASU Economic Club and SIFE Team included "It's Tax Time", "Buy or Lease?", "Georgia Stats For All", "Democrat? Republican?", and many more.

Armstrong SIFE students presented their outreach programs to a panel of local and national business leaders and entrepreneurs who rated the overall effectiveness of each team's efforts. Students also met with dozens of corporate representatives from the Atlanta business community to discuss job opportunities. Regional champions named at twelve competitions held around the country, will present their projects at the SIFE International Exposition in Kansas City, Missouri, May 18-20.

Dr. Yassaman Saadatmand serves as advisor for the AASU Economic Club and SIFE Team. She was named a Sam Walton Free Enterprise Fellow in recognition of her leadership support of the SIFE program at Armstrong. She comments, "I'm very proud of my students, I knew they would do well."

Founded in 1975, and active on over 500 campuses nationwide, SIFE is one of America's premier free enterprise organizations. For more information, contact SIFE national headquarters in Springfield, Missouri at 1-800-677-SIFE, or AASU's Dr. Saadatmand at 921-5548.

AASU's Student Government Association In Action

By Jenita Howard

On Thursday, April 17, I witnessed something that made me seriously think about my role as a student here at AASU. I witnessed government in action, not an entity safeguarded from its constituents by privilege and distance; but a government for students, run by students as diverse as the people they represent. I witnessed the assembly of 28 students, all working toward the enhancement of student life and the chance to actively interact within the system. What I witnessed was a meeting of the Student Government Association

(SGA).

The SGA is made up of Senators (totaling 24 to date) and four Executive Officers. The elected officers, LeRoy Burke (President), Kevin Rachel (VP), Van Bui (Treasurer), and Whitney Walsh (Secretary), work hand-in-hand with the Senators. Every student on campus with a GPA of at least 2.0 and the desire to get involved, is eligible to become a Senator. This year's Senate has students with majors ranging from undecided to speech correction and premed; some are freshmen, seniors and upcoming graduates.

The SGA is the "tool" that the student body uses to implement activities or voice concerns. What is unique about the AASU Student Government Association is that it is only one among three schools within the University System of Georgia that has 100 percent control over how student activities fees are allocated (final approval has to be given by President Burnett and Joe Buck, Vice President of Student Affairs). Members of the SGA are involved in committees that touch on every aspect of student life. They make sure that the concerns of the student body are taken into consideration with regard to Financial Aid/Scholarships, Community Service, and Admissions/Academics, to name a few. It is important to note that you don't have to be a member of the SGA to be a part of this process. If you are interested in sitting on a committee or helping with certain projects, just stop by the SGA office or attend a meeting. The SGA has an open-door policy and looks forward to working with anyone interested in making positive changes here at AASU.

If you want to take a peek at how the SGA works and what it does, sit in on one of their Thursday meetings at 12:00 P.M. in room 204 on the second floor of the MCC building (or attend the Backadada Woods Jam, or the Beach Bash on May 9). A special meeting of the SGA will be held on Saturday, May 24, to discuss the goals and objectives of this year's session. What you will find is a group of enthusiastic students ready to make their mark in the AASU community.

editorial Is It Rape?

Rape...the crime of having sexual intercourse with a person forcibly without consent. I'm not sure if this is exactly what happened to me. Did I say "no"? Did I say it too quietly? Or did I just wish I had the voice and strength to say it and to stop this violation of my body from occurring?

Did I start off by saying "no, not really...I really don't want this..."? Was he listening? Was anybody? It's too late now. No matter how loud I scream now it had already happened- the mutilation of my insides, the ripping, scraping, burning, and shredding of what was supposed to feel good. That is what you hear- what people tell you. It was supposed to be romantic and filled with "I love you's" and followed by "are you okay? I didn't hurt you did I?" But instead he asked, "So, do you feel any different?" Did I? I told him "no". I didn't want to give him the gratification that he was special. I wasn't. At least I didn't think I was. I wasn't told any differently.

It was an act. A fifteen minute violation on a cold concrete floor, my pants around my ankles, my body rubbing on the dirt- on the cold floor...his animalistic grunts and moans. My shoulder presses against the refrigerator and I concentrate on the pain to ignore the more severity of what was happening to me. My hips ache, my shoulder will be bruised tomorrow. I don't even want to think of how sore I will be. It is a good thing we can't see our insides. I'm sure mine are shredded.

One final grunt and he jumps up off of me. I am relieved his weight is no longer suffocating me. My insides are numb and he finishes the job himself. I look at my body and I see that I still have my shoes on and my shirt never even came off. Slowly I readjusted my clothes. I am glad I wore loose clothing today. I have on my peach sweater and faded blue jeans. I stand- no offer to help me. I fold my arms and glare while he buttons his pants.

Where was the magic? Did I say "no"? Was it my imagination? Why don't I run? Why can't I? I feel nothing because there is nothing to feel. He approaches and puts his hand on my shoulder. I wince because of the fresh bruise. He says he has to go back to work. We are at a gun club- in a restaurant. It is a Sunday in December. I just turned sixteen last month. The restaurant is closed and we venture outside. He doesn't even hold my hand.

I cannot remember- will you help me? Did I say "no"? Did you hear me? Were you even listening? Did you really care? It is seven years later. I did say "no", but you talked me into it. "What would it matter, Sharon? You know you will give it to me eventually." That was the first time. It happened over a hundred more times. Each time the rubbing and scraping ripping away my insides. But after the first minute I don't feel much anymore.

People often wonder why I "let" this happen. You know they don't start off by being mean. They are always nice to you in the beginning. I didn't think much of myself at the time. It didn't take much to win my attention. He preyed on people like myself who were insecure and had a low self esteem. I ache much of the time now. I have no soul anymore and I am the walking dead. I just lie down and take it. What is the use in saying "no" when he doesn't listen. I hate him.

He says if I cheat on him he'll kill me. I do. He doesn't. I take twenty white crosses after seeing him with another girl. Later I throw up on his front lawn. Afterwards, I cry. It didn't work- and I am still here. Still on this planet in a world where I think that no one cares. There must have been signs that I was hurting, but no one saw. I can see myself in his mirror and I want to die. This is not me- the cute little girl who smiles all of the time. He says I am not even worth killing. I'm not am I? But didn't I say "no"? I could have sworn that I did. It doesn't matter though. You weren't listening. No one was.

Letter to the Editor:

This letter is in response to an article in the April 24 issue of the Inkwell. Radha Narayanan wrote an article on backpack titled "Have You Got The Bookbag Blues" and I felt that she left out an important aspect.

Many people purchase Jansport and Eastpack not only because it is the fashionable thing to have but also because it is the economical thing to do. While it is true that these packs cost considerably more than their generic counterparts they also come with a lifetime warranty against manufacturers defects. I know from experience that these companies honor this warranty. I purchased a Jansport pack about six years ago and at the end of last quarter the top seam began to rip. Granted I had to go to a Jansport dealer, obtain an envelope, and send the pack back to the manufacturer but the three dollars that it cost in postage was a lot less than a new pack. It is now three weeks later and I have a new pack that I could not be happier with. So while buying a Jansport may seem more expensive at first in the long run it was not. Try sending one of the cheaper packs back to the manufacturer and see what happens.

Sincerely,
Michelle B. Roberts

Learning Support: Try, Try Again? What You Should Know About Repeating L.S. Classes

By Mary Stone

On the first day of Learning Support Math 99, the instructor gave each student a Xerox stating the learning support guidelines. The guidelines addressed learning support requirements and grading procedures. It also stated that a student is "allowed 4 attempts to pass the courses in each area (math, English, reading) of learning support." What the guidelines do not state is the effect these attempts have on your financial aid.

Last year, after losing my job to layoffs and struggling with unemployment for five months, I decided to return to college to finish my degree. My last stint as a full time student was 19 years ago. Through the years, I took college courses off and on to meet the demands of my job, still the lack of a degree held me back from moving into any level of management.

During my recent job search, the lack of a degree also closed doors to new employment despite my work experience and references. Therefore, the commitment to finish my education came quite easily. I returned to college in 1996 for the summer session. I met with A.A.S.U.'s Financial Aid office and felt confident that if I kept my grades exemplary I would qualify for the Hope Scholarship upon reaching my 90th hour. As a student, I am consistently in good standing with A.A.S.U. and earned the honor of placement on the Dean's list. So, why am I denied the Hope Scholarship?

My inability to receive the Hope Scholarship is due to my repeat of the learning support Math 099. My last glance at algebra was over ten years ago. The course work was as familiar to me as Latin, yet I stuck with it to the end. I did not drop out, nor neglect my course work. Nevertheless, the fog of exponents, quadratics, and formulas did not clear until near the end of the summer quarter and by then, my class average fell below passage. Speaking with my instructor, I immediately registered to repeat the course the following quarter. I am proud to say I passed and still maintained a GPA above 3.0.

Even so, I was quite shocked to learn that my first attempt would return to haunt me. Although A.A.S.U. does not calculate LS courses in your GPA, the State of Georgia requires the financial aid office to consider all course attempts when delegating financial assistance, thus every attempt reflects into your true GPA. Due to my first failed attempt in LS Math 099 my GPA dropped to 2.795. I take great pride in maintaining my grades above 3.0. I spend long hours studying and preparing my work.

The gist of my concern lies within the misleading guidelines distributed by the learning support staff. The guidelines should clearly state that although a student is allowed 4 attempts, each repeated attempt may effect their financial aid in the future. Though a student should complete the course upon the first attempt, many students do not. These additional attempts are to help the student succeed, yet each failed attempt is a penalty toward financial aid.

Students, who are currently receiving financial aid and have repeated an LS course, should request a copy of their transcript and reassess their GPA. I am currently appealing my denial, but students need to review their true GPA before it proves detrimental to their financial aid status.

Heads Up Ya'll

By Anslee Willett

I always run around throwing things together at the last minute. This trip was no exception. Packing in under an hour the night before we left, I'd hoped I hadn't forgotten anything.

This was it. The trip that had been planned for months. I'd been invited to go skiing in New Hampshire for a few days. Without any hesitation, I accepted the invitation.

I realized that I would be missing two days of classes — I was only taking two classes that met twice a week. I, however, had no problem sacrificing these two misses to go skiing, and my professors were equally understanding.

At 8 a.m. on Sunday, my friend and I headed north. Around 7 p.m. we stopped in Philadelphia for the night. I'd left Savannah in a sweatshirt and shorts. In Philadelphia, I got many stares though. Most everyone in the restaurant had on coats and some even had on winter hats. After the noticeable onlooking of eyes, I then realized that I'd forgotten to stamp "Southerner" on my forehead.

While staying Monday night in Massachusetts with my friend's relatives, I sat in astonishment as I listened to their dialect. I noticed they dropped the "er" from the ending of words. Their conversation was full of words like "Septembah," "nevah," and "whatevah." And not once did they use "y'all."

Tuesday morning I strapped on my ski boots and waddled out to the snow. I then hooked my boots into the skis, or rather what seemed more like awkwardly long feet. I soon realized that it was to my best interest to have a practice session on flat surface before heading to the bunny slope. This was my first time on skis.

I quickly learned there's somewhat of an art to moving around with skis on. A sort of unnatural coordination. My first attempt down the bunny hill, I shot straight down. It's not wise to go straight down a hill, but instead to go back and forth. I had so much speed that I'm sure that had I managed to stay upright, I could've ended up in the parking lot. Almost luckily, the ice on the far side of the hill stopped me.

After a few times on the bunny hill, I hopped over to the "real" slopes. I was feeling brave. To my amazement, this southern girl caught on to maneuvering on skis going downhill. Becoming hooked, I stayed on the slopes for six hours.

The next day, we harbored aches not felt the day of our adventurous skiing. To recover from our pains, we spent most of Wednesday in the car heading further north to behold the snow-covered mountains.

While we were planning this trip, we agreed to stop in New York City on the way back since I've always wanted to check out the mysterious Big Apple.

My mystery was revealed Thursday. There was a definite quality of New York City that immediately distinguished it from any other city I'd visited, which was yellow cars, yellow cars, and more yellow cars.

I'm not sure if it's a requirement for someone to almost always be laying on their horn in this city, but I'm pretty sure that it is an understood rule among residents. But of course this overwhelming astonishment of banana colored cars and honking of horns subdued.

Standing atop the 80th floor of the Empire State Building, I didn't hear one horn and those yellow cars appeared quite insignificant. It was the scenery that held my attention. The view of hundreds and hundreds of buildings expanding from any direction. I have never seen the vastness and wonderment of this city captured in pictures.

Returning to Savannah, we planned another trip of the same kind for next year.

Attention All Parents! Don't Miss Okefenokee Joe! Oh Yeah, and Bring the Kids Too!

By Heather R. Whitley

On May 17, we will be having our final Kids Nite Out Program for the year. It will begin at 6:00 P.M. in the Community Park on Science Drive. For dinner we will be grilling hamburgers and adding a few extras. Afterwards, Okefenokee Joe will be performing with his live animal kingdom, and then to finish off the evening, each child will receive a free gift from a special grab bag and get to play on the playground with the other children until 9 P.M. At that time, we will be sad to say Adios until September. If you have any questions regarding Kids Nite Out or this particular program, feel free to call Student Activities at 927-5300.

Mark your calendars now for May 17 (6-9 P.M.) and in the rush to see Okefenokee Joe, don't forget to bring your children!

For your information: Kids Nite Out is a program designed for all faculty, staff, and student's children to come and enjoy free of charge while the parents do a little shopping, catch a movie, study, or just relax. A well developed staff takes care of the children during the three hours and has lots of fun playing games, talking, and just having fun with the children. It is considered to be one of the greatest programs on campus. If you want to find out why, then come join us May 17th, or volunteer to help. You will be totally amazed that over 100 children can be so well behaved, yet have such a wonderful time doing things that they enjoy.

On a more personal note, I would like to say a final thank you to Mr. Al Harris, Dion Couch, and the EMCEES committee for helping each and every program over the past school year. It has proven itself to be a true success. Thanks to all of you that have given your support, time and many efforts.

Golf: Thanks To Tiger, It's Not Just Your Grandfather's Game These Days

By Maggie Welter
Campus Correspondent
James Madison University
College Press Service

It's not your grandfather's game anymore. The college crowd has found a new fairway of fun—the golf course.

Once shunned as a slow game of old geezers in funky plaid pants, golf has become one of the hottest leisure activities of college students.

"Before golf was frowned upon as a sissy sport," said Jason Rodenhaver, assistant coach of the golf team at the University of Maryland, "now it's really hot."

Indeed. With a boost from 21-year-old golf sensation Tiger Woods and other celebrities such as Hootie and the Blowfish, young people are now the fastest growing segment of golf players in the United States. According to the National Golf Foundation the number of 15- to 30-year-old golfers grew 17 percent from 1994 to 1995. Across all age groups participation increased only about 2 percent.

For proof of the phenomenon look no further than college campuses. "It seems the thing to do is go to the [driving] range," said Jen Nowitzky, a James Madison University senior who picked up golf last semester. "After class you grab some clubs, a few friends and head on out."

Gary Carpenter, a senior and co-captain of Maryland's golf team, has been playing since he was 6 years old, but he's seeing more and more of his friends getting into the golf groove. "Once you take them out they're hooked. They're like, 'Yeah, this is fun. Let's go out again.'"

At some courses, students have become like the Energizer Bunny, say pros. They just keep coming and coming and coming.

"Students fill our course all the time now. It used to be more older players, but recently the number of male and female kids has really increased," Rodenhaver said. Maryland has its own course, and a half-price student greens fees is an extra incentive to hit the links, the assistant coach added.

For some the course is the ultimate playground; for others teeing off is a way to relieve stress.

"Our generation feels cooped up and overworked. Golf lets you relax and take your mind off school," said JMU junior Seth Burton.

Some students actually get credit for clubbing the ball. Since the sport has become so popular, however, getting into a golf class can be as difficult as booking a tee time on a sun-drenched day. "I teach two sections of golf a semester and five minutes into registration they're full," said Bob Vanderwalker, an instructor at JMU. "I have students knocking down my door to get on waiting lists."

For JMU senior Lisa Brown, Golf 101 was a required course—sort of. "Golf is now kind of a required class for business majors. All the bigwigs conduct business on the course so you need to know how to play," said Brown, an international business major. Interest in golf has been building for some years, but increased substantially this year, Rodenhaver said, largely due to Wood's presence on the PGA Tour. "College people finally have an idol they can identify with. He's made golf cool," he said.

And Wood's legendary status promises to only grow. With a 72-hole score of 18-under-par 270, Woods not only won the Masters Tournament April 14 by a record 12 strokes, he shattered the the Masters' record of 271 that Jack Nicklaus and Raymond Floyd has shared. And he did it as a 21-year-old rookie, becoming the youngest player ever to win the Masters and the first African American to do so.

On the eve of his Masters victory in Augusta, Ga., Woods himself said he realized what an impact his win could have on the game of golf. "It's going to open up a lot of doors," he told reporters. "On this stage and this kind of media, I think it's going to do a lot for the game as far as minority golf is concerned."

For Woods, golf is more than a job or a game, it's an addiction. "It's like a drug," he recently told Newsweek. "If I don't have it I'll go crazy. It's gone beyond love and hate. I got to keep playing." Maryland's Carpenter says he feels the same way. "There is a certain passion about golf. I love the game personally. It's the only game that's based on true honesty, you know—with no officials, and that makes it unique," Carpenter said.

Woods is not the only figure encouraging the trend. Three years ago the video cable channel VH-1 started the annual Fairway to Heaven rock'n'roll golf tournament in Las Vegas. Players in the 1996 tournament included Amy Grant and members of Hootie and the Blowfish and REM. Hollywood also boosted golf's image with the release of "Tin Cup" and "Happy Gilmore" last summer.

The merchandise industry also is hip to the trend. GenXers are expected to spend up to spend close to five billion dollars on greens fees, apparel and golf equipment this year. That's one reason Nike wooed Woods into a $40 million contract to sport its golf footwear and new youth-oriented apparel. Nike also is working with Woods to develop his own bolder and hipper clothing line and his own logo, due to hit stores in 1998.

According to John White, a Nike Golf spokesperson: "He has wide appeal to our young consumers. His potential to excite the game of golf among that block is tremendous."

Other companies such as A.M. player and Izod are also targeting the youth market with new designs.

As for the future, White said the drive to drive won't be bunkered anytime soon. "Golf is cruising higher and faster than ever before, and it's going to continue speeding."

"Freaknik" Draws Smaller Crowd

By College Press Service
ATLANTA—Fewer arrests and fewer complaints marked this year's Freaknik festival, an annual street party which draws thousands of black students from across the country.

Atlanta Police Chief Beverly Harvard reported there were 17 percent fewer telephone complaints about the citywide party. Still, Atlanta police said there were 511 arrests, and 232 people were jailed. Last year, 683 people were jailed.

Police seized 29 weapons during the three-day event, more than twice as many as the 14 confiscated last year.

Cars jammed Atlanta streets throughout the weekend, as students crowded city streets and roadways.

Police issued the most tickets for traffic violations, followed by public indecency or "taking off their clothes," as officers described it.

In previous years, Freaknik was marred by looting and violence, which did not occur this year.

Last year's event attracted an estimated 80,000 students. No official estimate was made of this year's crowd, but authorities believe it was smaller than in 1996.

Miami U. Dumps "Redskins" Nickname

By College Press Service
MIAMI, Ohio—After months of heated debated, Miami University of Ohio has announced it will officially change its athletic teams' nickname from "Redskins" to "RedHawks."

The university's Board of Trustees voted April 18 to change the nickname after the Miami Indian Tribe of Oklahoma withdrew its longtime support for the old nickname.

The decision to change the name has riled some Miami alumni, including a group of 13 alums who have filed a suit in state court to block the name change. The suit, which is still pending, claims that the Board of Trustees violated the state's "Sunshine Law" by secretly discussing the name change.

A board committee sorted through scads of proposed new names before settling on the RedHawks. Other suggested nicknames included Spitting Camels, Indomitable Cheetahs, Poodles and Politically Corrects. The trustees chose RedHawks over two other finalists, Thunder Hawks and Miamis.

The university announced it will begin using "RedHawks" at the beginning of the fall semester. That will give the school time to register the new nickname and to prepare uniforms, said university officials.

God's Redeeming Voice:

Our Heart's Desire-Psalms 27

"One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life. . . (Ps. 27:4)"

By Sonaike Adeyemi

There was a man in Indiana who lived in the same house all his life. Imagine! For nearly 80 years he wakes up every day in that house. He went to school from the house, then to work, and always returned to the same house. He said he had no desire to live anywhere else.

There is the place we should want to dwell in all the time, and that is in the presence of the Lord. In Psalm 27, David expressed his desire to "dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of his life" (verse 4) because, he knew that when he was in God's house-God's presence-he was safe from his enemies-the devil, Satan and demons (verse 5).

As God created us on this earth, we must understand why he created us. He loved us and he wants us to always dwell in his presence so that we can receive all the precious blessings he has in His kingdom (Heaven). John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, so that whosoever believeth in him shall not perish, but have everlasting life."

Dwelling in the presence of the Lord also means being on His side. The only way that you can be on His side is by confessing your sins to God Almighty and you ask for forgiveness of your sins. The book of Romans says, "If you confess that Jesus is the Lord and believe that God raised Jesus from death, you will be saved. Everyone who calls out to the Lord for help will be saved (verse 9 and 13). By doing these, he will now bring you into His presence which means he will transform you into his kingdom and you will now be one of his children, friends, soldiers and ambassadors. You are no more his enemy as the scripture says in Romans chapter eight, verse five and six, "Those who live as their human nature tells them to, have their mind controlled by what human nature wants. Those who live as the Holy Spirit tells them to, have their mind controlled by what the spirit wants. To be controlled by human nature results in death; to be controlled by the spirit results in life and peace."

In (Romans 8) verse 7 the bible says, "And so a person becomes an enemy of God when he is controlled by his human nature: for he does not obey God's law (commandments) and in fact he cannot obey it. Verse

8 says, "Those who obey their human nature cannot please God. Verse 5 says that those who live as the spirit of the Lord tells them to, have their mind controlled by what the spirit wants. And what are the things the spirit wants? They are those abundant blessings that are in the kingdom of God-HEAVEN."

A REVELATION OF THE KNOWLEDGE OF GOD

This was given to Daniel when he seeks the face of the Lord on an issue which was to interpret the dream of King Nebuchadnezzar. In Daniel 12:19, God revealed unto Daniel in a night vision the meaning of the dream.

As one begins to stay in the presence of the Lord, always meditating and praising him of his greatness, one's faith begins to build up. Gradually you'll find yourself filled with enough faith to believe God for anything.

You can only receive the revelation of the Lord by communication with him through your prayers. Pray for the grace, knowledge, divine revelation and anointing of God.

BOLDNESS

As you keep on dwelling in His presence everyday, you will be filled with boldness as Elijah was filled with boldness when he said confidently to the Lord of Israel that there shall be no dew or rain (1 Kings 17:1).

Also, as the two Apostles Peter and John were filled with the spirit of boldness- the Holy Spirit-they spoke confidently in front of the children of the devil (Acts 4:1-21). So you can be filled and then you will control the devil and his kingdom of darkness with you boldness and you will also preach the good news.

As long as you keep on dwelling in his presence, and also praying, soon you will be filled with the Holy Spirit (Acts 4:23-31).

SURE SUCCESS

Being alone with God makes one succeed where others fail. Success, everlasting success is God's will for us. He says in His word that when we take heed to His words and live in obedience to His commandments we shall prosper in all that we do and we shall receive "good success."

He even made it clearer that we shall be the head and not the tail, if we obey his commandments and do his will (Deuteronomy 28:13).

Also in the book of Psalms, the very first chapter verses one through three, God gave us the assurance of prosperity if we do what he says. Even in the book of Joshua chapter one verse eight, God is telling us that not until we study the book of law ("The Bible") day and night, and observe all that is written inside it; He, the Lord, will not make our ways prosperous, and he will refuse to give us good success.

The devil tries to make it difficult for us to have this good success that God has provided for us. Such difficulty or difficulties that might arise through Satan can be adequately taken care of by prevailing prayer and by acting on the Word of God.

*Pray and change the negative circumstances in your life. Pray now and you will succeed.

THE REVELATION OF HIS WILL

This can only be received by staying alone with God and by studying the bible as commanded. He does not want us to be uncertain concerning His will for our lives. He wants us to hear from him clearly and accurately and be sure about every step we take.

There are certain revelations that the Lord cannot give us until we are in His presence. It is not that God is unwilling to make His mind known to us on specific issues, but we are too busy to take the time to be in His presence or to pray or even to study the bible and listen to Him. This means that God speaks to us individually or collectively, save or unsaved and we do not hear Him speaking simply because we have made our heart to desire the things of the world which are money, houses, sex, boy/girlfriends-unnecessary relationships.

In John 8:12, Jesus said, "I am the light of the world he that follow me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

Note that in that verse He said, "but shall have the light of life.." to have the light of life means He shall stand by your side even when families and friends seem to turn you down. Also it means you will have peace of life. You will not need to smoke in order to get peace of mind, you will not need to have sex in order to gain peace of mind. They do not last forever, they are temporal. He, the Lord shall give unto you everlasting Peace of mind when you come to His presence.

The revelation we are talking of comes to those who have learned the art of being on the Lord's side.

Taking Peter and Paul for example. They were both in the presence of the Lord before God could give them their different revelations. Peter was on the upper house top in the presence of God and it was while in this position that God gave him the revelation that it was time the door of the kingdom of God be opened to the Gentiles. Remember that earlier God has given to him the keys of the kingdom - Matthew 16:18-19.

Paul received his own revelation while writing in different places. He wrote in the prison in Romans, in the wilderness in Galatians and he wrote more than half of the New Testament. "And you shall hear His voice behind you saying here is the road. Follow if you wander off the road to the right or to the left -Isaiah 30:21."

GOD'S GLORY RADIATING

You carry about the glory and radiance of God as a result of being in His presence and on His side.

There are people that are very charismatic positively or negatively. On getting to a place the atmosphere must change of a necessity either for better or for worse. But for those that make up their mind to repent from their sinful ways and move away from the road of darkness, which they are on, to the road that gives life, joy, peace, strength, power, authority, and dominion over the prince of the world-Satan, they have more than positive charisma, they carry about with them anointing and the presence and Glory of God, the I AM.

In John 17:22, Jesus said, "And the Glory of yours which thou gave me, I have given to them that believe that they may be one, even as we are."

As a born again Christian, as one who has surrendered all of his ways unto the Lord, you will shine out clearly as long as you remain on the Lord's side.

Moses stayed in God's presence on the mountain, praying and fasting, and when he came out of the presence of the Lord, his face was shining to the extent that the people-Israelites-noticed it.

So if you make a U-TURN from the dark road which you are now in to the road of life- His presence, He will forgive you and He will make His Glory shine upon your family, life, education, business, and so on that people around you will surely see it shining.

They will be forced to ask you how you could shine, when you were once a sinner. Then you will be bold to answer them by saying according to the scriptures, "When anyone is joined to Christ, he is a new being - the old is gone, the new has come- 2 Corinthians 5:17."

Arise and let the Glory of the Living God shine upon your life now.

ALL THINGS ARE POSSIBLE

With God all things are possible.

This is true, but what is wrong is that we merely say it and we never consider that God works all these possibilities through men. The scripture says in Mark 9:23, that, "All things are possible to him that believeth." - God works all things through him that believes in him.

Being on the Lord's side always, gives us victory and dominion over Satan and his subjects-demons, evil spirits, etc. You have the opportunity to build up your faith and develop it to a level where you accomplish all things.

When you stay with God, you know Him and believe Him. Then you will not need to take any drugs nor drink coffee to gain strength because you will say, "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me-Philippians 4:13."

You will not look for protection anywhere else because there will be strong protection all day long- day and night. Psalm 34:7 says, "His angels guard those who have reverence for the Lord and protect them from danger."

You will be able to move any mountain that might come across your way. You will speak and the mountain, i.e: problems, difficulties, will listen to the word of God and shall disappear.

What kind of negative circumstance(s) do you have in your life today? Whatever it may be; be it matrimonial problems, failures, lack of joy, lack of peace etc. Turn them all into the hands of the One who loves and cares for you "Jesus." He is the provider, the healer, the deliverer, the conquerer, the King of peace, joy and of Kings. Everything you need is in Jesus Christ, no other name.

Jesus said, "YOU shall know the truth and the truth shall set you free"-John 8:32. Now that you know the truth, where will you choose to dwell? In the house of the one who keeps standing as a barrier between you and God- Satan, where you will remain a prisoner for the rest of your life and will be in captivity and bondage until you finally die; or in the house of the most high, the one who knows everything. The one who created you and I to serve him and not to be in bondage: The Almighty God.

This is what the Lord says, "It will be difficult for you that forsake me, who ignore Zion my sacred hill, and worship Gad and Meni, the gods of luck and fate. It will be your fate to die a violent death, because you did not answer when I called you or listen when I spoke. You chose to disobey me and do evil. And so I tell you that those who worship and obey me will have plenty to eat and drink, but you will be hungry and thirsty. They will be happy, but you will be disgraced. They will sing for joy, but you will cry with a broken heart. I, the sovereign Lord, will put you to death. But I will give a new life to those who turn to me and obey me. The troubles of their past will be gone and forgotten"-Isaiah 65:11-16.

If you have made up your mind to surrender your life to Him (God), pray this prayer with me:

Heavenly father, King of Kings and Lord of Lords. I come before thee to be cleansed from my sins through the blood of Jesus.

Lord, put thy power within me
Lord, take me as I am because I surrender all to you.

Purify my heart, soul and being with the precious blood of thy son, Jesus Christ because I acknowledge that I am a sinner.

Make me whole. Make my heart thy palace and thy royal throne.

Oh God, I thank you that you have prepared for those who love you good things that I cannot imagine; pour into my heart such love for you that I may love you above all things, and so obtain your promises of blessings which are more than I can desire.

I ask this in the name of Jesus Christ, Amen.

May the mind of Christ my Saviour live in me from day to day,

By His love and power controlling all I do and say.

May the word of God dwell richly in my heart from hour to hour, so that all-the devil-may see I triumph, only through His power.

Oh God, because I cannot please you by my own efforts, I ask that in your mercy you will guide and control my life through your Holy Spirit, which I welcome into my life now; I ask this in the name of Jesus, Amen.

You can make the dwelling in His presence a regular feature of your life. . . HALLELUJAH
Satan has lost the battle. We have the victory!

Tuition to Increase this Fall

By Radha Narayanan

Well, there is some bad news on the way. Tuition prices are going up. Of course, students are going to be mad, but prices always have to go up at one time or another. The new tuition fees start from the summer quarter on. For Georgia residents, the tuition for full-time undergraduate students are no $654 per quarter. The tuition is now $2,141 per quarter for out of state full-time undergraduate students. Tuition has gone up for graduate students also. Full-time Georgia resident graduate students must now pay $711 per quarter. The out-of-state graduate students enrolling for full time now have to pay $2,351 each quarter.

The housing and food prices have gone up also. Having a private room of your own now costs $1,554 per quarter and it includes a $600 food service allotment. It previously was 1,500 a quarter with a $570 food service allotment. If you want to share the room with a roommate, then it will cost you $1,372 with a $600 food service allotment. Previously it was $1,307 with a $570 food service allotment. Overall, the increases for the dormitory is not bad since you are allowed to spent more money for the food.

I am sure that many of you want to know exactly why the tuition and housing prices are going up. Well, the answer is that they are normal increases of 3-4%. The increases have been approved by the Board of Regents. Many students will be upset by the increase, but it is not that much. I guess that we will have to find a way to get the extra money to pay for it.

Ramps, Ramps, Ramps!!! Access to Buildings Improves

By: Mary Henry

You may have noticed all the construction going on around campus. Some of the most important construction sites are the three new ramps that are being installed in front of the Student Center, Jenkins Hall, and Lane Library.

These ramps are the result of many years of work, starting with Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and continuing with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) in 1990, which requires colleges and universities to make reasonable accommodations for handicapped students, faculty, staff and guests.

One of these accommodations is making the buildings on campus have at least one handicapped accessible entrance.

The ramp in front of the Student Center is to replace the old one, which was referred to as the "scream machine" by those who were brave enough to use it.

The reason it is being replaced is because the ramp did not meet ADA requirements. The requirements state that there must be a maximum slope of 1 inch in height for every 12 inches the ramp goes out.

The ramps must be at least 36 inches wide. If a ramp changes directions it must have a maximum landing size of 60 by 60 inches.

The ramp at Jenkins Hall is a new construction that is going to make it easier for disabled students to attend plays and other functions that they have never been able to do before now. The ramp in front of Lane Library will make it easier for disabled students to enter and exit the library, which is now done through the rear of the building.

David Faircloth of Plant Operations said that the new construction is expected to be completed within the next 30 days. It is nice to see this progress on our campus, but this is only a beginning. There are many other issues that need to be addressed.

National Immunization Information Hotline Launched

National Infant Immunization Week is April 20-26

People with questions about vaccinations can call the National Immunization Information Hotline, a new toll-free service providing information about vaccine-preventable diseases and immunizations to protect against them. The hotline is operated by the American Social Health Association under contract with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's National Immunization Program.

Hotline counselors, who began serving callers on March 17, are preparing for increased calls during National Infant Immunization Week, April 20-26.

The hotline is expected to answer 52,000 calls each year on its English service (800/232-2522) and 5,200 calls annually on its Spanish service (800/232-0233).

Callers can receive information about 12 vaccine-preventable diseases: chicken pox (varicella), diphtheria, haemophilus influenza type B (Hib), hepatitis B, influenza, measles, mumps, pneumococcal disease, polio, rubella, tetanus and whooping cough (pertussis).

The hotline gives information on who should be immunized, when to be immunized and sites where vaccines are available. It also offers free publications.

Hotline hours are 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Eastern time, Monday through Friday.

Mary Stuart, hotline director, said the service's most vital role is encouraging parents to have their children vaccinated on time. According to the CDC, one-fourth of children in the U.S. have not been fully immunized against childhood diseases.

"One of parents' most common misconceptions is that vaccinations are necessary only when a child is old enough for school," Stuart said. "In fact, children need 80 percent of their vaccinations before they are two years old. Most child care providers and schools will not accept children who have not completed the necessary vaccinations.

"Some parents assume that childhood vaccines are no longer important because diseases such as measles are not as common as they once were," Stuart continued. "However, immunizations are responsible for the decline of these diseases. When parents stop having their children immunized, new outbreaks occur."

For example, she said, a major cause of the measles epidemic of 1989-91 was the failure to vaccinate children against measles at 12 to 15 months of age. The epidemic infected more than 55,000 Americans, accounting for about 11,000 hospitalizations and 120 deaths.

The immunization hotline also answers questions about recommended vaccinations for adolescents and adults.

The new hotline joins the National AIDS Hotline (800/342-2437) and National STD Hotline (800/227-8922) as toll-free services operated by ASHA under contract with CDC. These hotlines answer more than 1.2 million calls each year.

Mike's Crime Corner

By Michael D'Ottavio

Hello readers and welcome to my crime corner. In one way or another, we've all been touched by crime.

I have a dual purpose in writing this article; first, I hope to make you a safer student, and second, open your eyes to what we all would rather not see: crime on campus!

It appears that our number one problem on the AASU campus is theft. Theft is a very violating crime. It makes you scared: that whole, they did it once so they can do it again thing.

Most of the thefts have been small, but there are exceptions to everything. There were two class rings stolen from the book store that have a total value of $868. One woman had her purse snatched. The most common thefts on campus are car related; several cars have been broken into and one even had the license plate stolen.

Let's talk for a moment— if there's one thing that I can't stand, it's stupidity. As an example, if someone keyed your car, you'd be very upset wouldn't you? Now, if someone destroying your property makes you mad, why do it to someone else? I mean, come on, show just a little respect for the someone other than yourself.

The worst property damage is coming from people breaking windows. Several car and office windows have been broken on campus. Someone even tried breaking into the gym. They failed, but did manage to destroy the door.

Fellow students, the price of this wholesale destruction is coming out of your pockets, so I'd be hopping mad.

Academic fraud is a serious charge. Let it be known that a student out there is guilty of it. A student on campus broke into a computer and stole the final exam.

Let's be perfectly clear on this: we're all college students and are here by hard work. If you can't cut it, you don't need to be here!

The last crime area that I'd like to address is that of violent crime. Last month we had not one, but two cases of the most disturbing kind of violent crime: RAPE! As a man with compassion, I've decided to withhold descriptions of the victims. These women have been violated. They don't want our pity, they want JUSTICE. The only consultation I can give these two women is the fact that both the suspects were arrested.

Crime prevention and safety are easy if you use good judgment. To help prevent theft from your car, keep valuables out of sight, most likely in the trunk. In cases of personal theft, a good tip is don't keep all your money in one place, keep some in your pocket and wallet.

Violent crime is tough to prevent, but knowing a little about self defense never hurts. A good all around tip for safety is, if in an unfamiliar area, stay in well lighted public places, and use a buddy system: always have someone near you that you can count on.

If you're the victim of a crime, don't be embarrassed, report it to the campus police. Remember that the sooner the police are notified, the sooner that the crime can be solved. Reporting crime is everyone's job, so please take it seriously.

As a writer, I'm always open to comments that will help me better inform my readers. Your comments are welcome. They can be delivered to the Inkwell Office in the Student Union, second floor, next to the Student Government Office. Just address the comments to Michael D'Ottavio. Good-bye for now and until next time, be safe!

Recycling Guide

for Savannah, GA

Find out the

"What? Where? and How?"
of recycling!

Prepared 9/96 by the Recycling Committee of the Sierra Club (Coastal Group). Thanks to Keep Savannah Beautiful for information on the locations of many of the collection sites.
NOTE: Bin locations and recycling policies occasionally change.

"But I don't know what to do," you say?

Here's how:

What do I need to do to cans?

Remove the lid from steel cans, then rinse inside of can and lid thoroughly. Aluminum beverage cans merely need to be rinsed out.

What do I need to do to plastic and glass bottles/jars?

Remove and discard lids, rinse away food residue. Glass needs to be sorted by color (clear, green, brown), so you may want to sort it as it accumulates.

What about labels on bottles and cans?

Labels DO NOT need to be removed from cans, bottles, or jars.

Where can I keep recyclable items between trips to the drop-off site?

Home-based recycling containers can be as simple as a grocery bag or cardboard box or as "fancy" as a plastic recycling bin purchased from a discount store or other supplier.

How do I know where to put things once I reach the collection site?

Most bins are labeled clearly.

How can I save time at the drop-off site? At home, as you accumulate bottles and cans, put them in separate containers or in separate areas of your container so that you don't need to sort them later.

Steel cans are often called "tin" cans.

How can I minimize waste and conserve resources?

Follow the three R's:

1. REDUCE: Do some of the items you buy have excess packaging? (Example: an unnecessary box or plastic wrapping)

Consider buying in bulk or buying brands that have less packaging.

2. RE-USE containers for food storage or home projects.

3. RECYCLE those items which can be recycled. (Lots of things, like clothing, tires, cans, bottles, paper of all sorts!) Remember to "complete the circle" by buying products with the highest content of post-consumer waste you can find.

In addition, composting is a great way to turn kitchen and yard wastes into "food" for your garden.

Some things that I often hear from women.

TOP 10 REJECTION LINES GIVEN BY WOMEN (and what they actually mean)

10. I think of you as a brother. (You remind me of that inbred banjo-playing geek in "Deliverance.")
9. There's a slight difference in our ages. (I don't want to do my dad)
8. I'm not attracted to you in 'that' way. (You are the ugliest dork I've ever laid eyes on.)
7. My life is too complicated right now. (I don't want you spending the whole night or else you may hear phone calls from all the other guys I'm seeing.)
6. I've got a boyfriend (I prefer my male cat and a half gallon of Haagen Daaz).
5. I don't date men where I work. (I wouldn't date you if you were in the same 'solar system much less the same building.)
4. It's not you, it's me. (It's you.)
3. I'm concentrating on my career. (Even something as boring and unfulfilling as my job is better than dating you.)
2. I'm celibate. (I've sworn off only the men like you.)

And the number 1 rejection line given by women (and what it means)

1. Let's be friends. (I want you to stay around so I can tell you in excruciating detail about all the other men I meet and have sex with. It's that male perspective thing.)

Mother's Day Gift Ideas That Are Healthy For Body, Soul And Budget

(NAPS)—The best way to show Mom you care this Mother's Day is to choose a gift that will keep her healthy, keep you wealthy, and show that you're a wise and thoughtful gift shopper. "Moms of all ages are looking to lead healthier lifestyles," says Melissa Zaniboni, shopping expert from Marshalls. "Gifts that support a healthy lifestyle will show Mom that her well-being is important to you."

Zaniboni offers the following Mother's Day gift guide for Moms of all interests and personalities, that will also appeal to shoppers on a budget:

- For the Mom who loves food but is health-conscious, create a gift basket complete with low fat crackers and goodies, spices, and flavored vinegars and sauces to add zing to her warm-weather cuisine. Include a low-fat cookbook; then spend time together creating meals that are delicious and healthy.

- The best complement to a healthy spread of food is a cheerful table setting. Handpainted pottery, serving utensils and fresh glassware will brighten her summer table. Complete the look with a tablecloth or placemats and coordinating napkins.

- Appeal to the do-it-yourself Mom with new gardening tools and colorful pots that encourage her to grow her own herbs for cooking. She'll love being able to grow her own flowers, plants and vegetables once you "plant the seed" with a gardening gift.

- For the active Mom, create a personalized gym bag complete with a new warm-up suit, brand name footwear, shorts and tees. No matter what her sport of choice, from aerobics to walking, you can find great gear at unbeatable prices when you shop at an off-price retailer like Marshalls.

- Making time to relax is just as important as exercise for Mom's leading a healthy lifestyle. Treat her to a selection of bath soaps, perfumes and lotions packaged in a colorful trinket box or basket with a loofah pad and facial mask. Scented candles and potpourri will help help set the mood, and the result will be a soul that's as healthy as her body!

"Choosing a gift that will fit Mom's personality and your budget is easy when you think creatively and shop smartly," says Marshalls' Zaniboni.

Face-Saving Tips For Spring

(NAPS)—With warm weather just around the corner, now is a good time to evaluate your skin care regimen and take steps to ensure your skin is soft and beautiful for the season ahead. Dove Advisory Council dermatologist Dr. Debra Wattenberg offers the following advice:

Drink, drink, drink. Eight glasses of water a day will give your skin the essential moisture it needs—from the inside out.

You are what you eat. For healthy, supple skin, make sure your diet includes five to nine daily servings of fruits and vegetables.

Cleanse skin frequently. Breakouts are common during warmer weather, as people are more active, so be sure to shower immediately to remove perspiration and oils. Avoid using soap, however, which can leave skin dry and flaky. Instead, try a mild, moisturizing beauty bar such as Dove® Beauty Bar, containing 1/4 moisturizing lotion, which doesn't dry your skin like soap.

Take shorter showers. Using lukewarm water instead of hot helps skin retain natural body oils.

Less is more. Switch to a lighter, oil-free moisturizer with a 15+ SPF, as skin needs less hydration in warmer weather because of higher humidity.

Beware, the demon sun. Never leave the house without a hat, or sunscreen, which should be applied at least 20 minutes before going outside.

Test your current cleanser. If your skin feels extremely dry, oily, itchy or tight after washing, it may be time to switch to a moisturizing beauty bar such as Dove. Dove even guarantees its product with a week-long trial period.

The Chopping Block by Philomena Corradeno

Whether it's fact or myth, I don't know; but some years ago, I read that when Benjamin Franklin was ambassador to France, he attended a banquet where only potatoes were served — in 20 different ways. If true, it only goes to prove the versatility of potatoes.

Today I give you a dish I'm sure Ben did not have. Potatoes are simmered until barely done, tossed with a thyme-flavored honey mustard, then baked till golden around the edges.

Honey is a familiar ingredient in desserts and sauces but let's not overlook its possibilities as a vegetable glaze. If your children play with their veggies, push them around the plate, try to hide them under bread, not to worry. Put one over on them by giving the vegetables a new look and taste. Parsnips, carrots, even squash benefit from a honey glaze. So will the kids.

Test them with these.

HONEY MUSTARD ROASTED POTATOES

4 large baking potatoes
Honey Thyme Mustard*
Salt and pepper, to taste
Peel potatoes and cut each into 6 to 8 pieces. In large saucepan, cover potatoes with salted water; bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer potatoes 12 to 15 minutes, until barely tender. Drain. In large bowl, toss potatoes with Honey Thyme Mustard (recipe follows), tossing to coat evenly. Arrange potatoes on foil-lined baking sheet sprayed with vegetable cooking spray. Bake in preheated 375F. oven until potatoes brown around edges. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Makes 4 servings.

*HONEY THYME MUSTARD

1 cup Dijon-style mustard
1/2 cup honey
1 teaspoon dry thyme

Whisk all ingredients till well blended. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

HONEY GLAZED CARROTS

3 cups sliced carrots
1/4 cup honey
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

2 teaspoons chopped parsley

1 1/2 teaspoons mustard

Steam or microwave carrots until crisp-tender. Stir in honey, butter, parsley and mustard; coat evenly.

HONIED PARSNIPS

4 to 6 parsnips

1/2 cup honey

1/2 cup water

1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted

Peel parsnips; and boil in salted water until tender. Drain and cut into thick slices. Place in buttered baking dish. Combine honey, water and butter; pour mixture over parsnips. Bake in 350F. oven 10 minutes. Turn parsnips over and bake an additional 10 minutes. Place under broiler a few seconds to brown. Makes 4 servings.

Vocab Rehab

Today's Highlight: Effect vs. Affect

Effect: The power to achieve or produce a desired result.

Affect: To have an influence upon.

Usage: It is often confusing to determine whether to use affect or effect in a sentence. For example: "The play effected/affected my decision to become a doctor."

Did the play have the power to produce the desired result of the person becoming a doctor, or did it influence the person to become a doctor?

In this case we must assume that it influenced (affected) the person. If everyone who had seen the play become a doctor, then me might be safe in assuming that the play effected everyone.

In general, things that effect other things are more scientific in nature: protein metabolism effects muscle strength; whereas things like emotions and attitudes have more of an affect on people.

NEWS OF ANIMALS Cigarette Research Challenged

(NAPS)—The deadly effects of smoking cigarettes and the addictive nature of nicotine have been known for decades. Yet research on animals persists at the annual cost of millions of dollars.

Why are innocent animals being killed to prove things we already know? That's the question asked in a recent article that appeared in Mainstream magazine, published by the Animal Protection Institute.

According to author Karen Purves, if more people knew the facts, they would be outraged and disgusted at the cruelty being inflicted on animals during unnecessary university and government-funded research.

In 1996 the National Institutes of Health (NIH) alone funded over

An animal advocacy organization is concerned about animals that suffer needlessly in useless experiments.

$28 million for research primarily concerned with cigarette smoke and nicotine, 40 percent of which involved animals.

For example:

- Rhesus monkeys confined to seats with a head device and kept conscious during a 1995 research project were exposed to caffeine and nicotine to determine how caffeine and nicotine affected breathing. The combined effects of cigarette smoking and caffeine consumption are well documented.

- Rabbits were used and killed in a 1994 research project to investigate the effect of nicotine on incorporation of a bone graft. The authors of the study admitted that they already knew "smoking inhibits the incorporation of bone graft in those patients undergoing bone graft surgery...."

- Rats were restrained and kept conscious while exposed to cigarette smoke, all to examine cardiovascular function during a research project conducted in 1995, even though it was already known for over 40 years that cigarette smoking contributes to cardiovascular disease and coronary heart disease in humans.

Animals used in these types of experiments generally do not die as a result of the testing itself. Researchers kill the animals when they are done either for post-mortem information or because the animals are simply considered tainted research subjects which are not used for other purposes.

An investigation by the Animal Protection Institute has not uncovered any valid reasons for these and many other useless research experiments to continue. Much of the information gathered is already known to be true in humans.

Leold (leold@javanet.com) by Roger and Salem Salloom ©1996

I got this friend. He's always falling in love.

He's been answering the personal ads on his computer internet. He sends romantic letters back and forth on the computer all day and night.

Now, he's in love with a girl in Ohio. He lives in Massachusetts. He has pledged marriage. He's never ever seen her. They won't talk to each other on the phone because they're afraid they'll get spooked and run away if they don't like each other's voices.....wow.

I suppose it could be worse.

All last year he was in love with a girl who turned out to be 3 guys from UCLA.
